Greetings,

Much was accomplished during state Fiscal Year 2014 in regard to implementing the South Dakota Public Safety Improvement Act (SDPSIA). I express my thanks to the Department of Corrections (DOC) staff members that have devoted their efforts to this project. I am committed to implementing the SDPSIA reforms to reduce the state’s reliance on prison, reserving prison beds for violent/chronic and implementing interventions for offenders who, with proper services and supports, can be safely retained in the community.

We are encouraged by the recent formation of the Juvenile Justice Reinvestment Initiative. Doug Herrmann and Kristi Bunkers are DOC’s representatives on the work group formed by Governor Daugaard and Chief Justice Gilbertson. This group of juvenile justice experts is charged with putting together a plan that will bring needed resources to the communities of South Dakota and lower the number of youth that are committed to the Department of Corrections. We await their recommendations and potential legislation during the next legislative session.

Hats off to the staff at STAR Academy for having all three programs obtain the highest level in the Performance-based Standards (PbS) project. With a great deal of effort and hard work, STAR also was certified compliant with their first audit of the new Prison Rape Elimination Act (PREA) standards. We continue to prepare for audits in 2015 at the Women’s Prison in Pierre and Mike Durfee State Prison in Springfield.

The Restrictive Housing Reform project is making great progress under the leadership of Unit Manager Jessica Cook. In the coming months, we will see the implementation of the new level system, programming and basic structure of Restrictive Housing. We are very thankful for the resources of the Criminal Justice Institute in the way of technical support. I am very proud of DOC and the Department of Social Services staff on the hard work and difficult decisions that have gone into this project. There will be future obstacles to overcome, but we will be successful. This reform will lower the risk to the public when offenders are released and will reduce the violence and major rule infractions in DOC facilities.

“It is our attitude at the beginning of a difficult undertaking which, more than anything else, will determine its successful outcome.” William James

We have revamped our staff hiring process to include the use of Ergometrics Inc. testing and continue to work on staff development. The Leadership Boot Camp and the Leadership Academy are providing the necessary tools to supervisors to be better able to perform their duties and guide our corrections officers. We have also contracted with Desert Waters Correctional Outreach to assess our staff on the stress of working in the corrections field. We are integrating their From Corrections Fatigue to Fulfillment curriculum into our staff training and development plans.

Goals for FY 2015 include:

- Creation and development of Juvenile Justice Reinvestment Initiative;
- Continued work on implementing the SDPSIA;
- Continued refining our Restrictive Housing program;
- Begin PREA audits in our adult facilities;
- The development and introduction of kiosks in our adult facilities for commissary, inmate.

The Department of Corrections (DOC) continued to implement some of the comprehensive reforms passed into law in 2013 as part of the South Dakota Public Safety Improvement Act (SDPSIA).

Fiscal Year 2014 was the first year of authorized earned discharge credits (EDC) from parole supervision. The EDCs allow parolees to earn time off the term of their supervision for every month of full compliance with the conditions of supervision. In the months during which the parolee is non-compliant, the days are not earned. From July 2013 to June 2014, parolees earned a total of 758,348 days of EDCs. Nearly 80-percent of those on parole supervision received EDCs on at least one transaction for at least one of the months. During that same time period, more than 900 offenders discharged from DOC supervision with EDCs. This allows parole agents to focus resources on the most at-risk to offend.

The DOC and Sisseton-Wahpeton Oyate finalized a Memorandum of Agreement for a State-Tribal parole pilot program. The tribe hires an agent to supervise those offenders who return to the reservation after their term of incarceration. The tribe has set up a Wellness Team to accept those participating in the project. The parolees access tribal mental health, substance abuse and housing resources. It’s hoped that the project will help lower recidivism rates.

The St. Francis House in Sioux Falls was selected as the Community Transition Program (CTP) Housing alternative for a placement option outside of the DOC minimum-security units. A program outline is in place and a two-year contract was signed in May 2014. The first participants began utilizing the program in June. Participants are lower-risk offenders with mainly housing needs. Individualized programming addresses financial skills, medication management, life skills, transportation/employment, social needs, and engaging community partners.

The DOC has also developed annual training for parole agents on evidence-based practices, criminal risk factors and targets to reduce recidivism. The training includes working with Effective Practices In Community Setting (EPICS) and core correctional practices.

An annual training schedule has also been established and evidence-based practices training is provided for members of the Board of Pardons and Paroles based on guidelines set by nationally recognized organizations. The training includes the use of actuarial tools to assess risk and needs, developing evidence based decision making tools, using the parole hearing process to enhance offender motivation, targeting programming and conditions of criminogenic needs to medium and high risk offenders, and strengthening agency level policy making, strategic management, and performance measurement skills/capacities. The Board is also developing a parole decision making guide to ensure their interactions and decisions regarding offenders are evidence-based.

Validation of risk and needs assessments continues by a consultant, including work on inter-rater reliability.

Work is ongoing to document baseline data for numerous performance measures where baseline comparisons are appropriate. The following data elements will be extracted for reporting to the Oversight Council: number of parolees by supervision level; number and percent of parolees whose contacts were consistent with supervision level; recidivism rates for parolees at the 1-year, 2-year, and 3-year marks; number and percent of parolees who have reduced their supervision level at discharge; number and percent of parolees by month with a policy driven response not including revocation proceedings; number and percent of parolees by month with a parole revocation; number and percent of parolees eligible and awarded earned discharge credits and the average amount of credits earned; new commitments and average sentence for crimes impacted by the SDPSIA; and discharges, average sentences, and average time served for crimes impacted by the SDPSIA. Narrative progress summaries are also being developed.
During FY 2014, the DOC adopted Restrictive Housing policy guidelines that were approved by the Association of State Correctional Administrators (ASCA). Staff began developing a multi-level system designed to reduce institutional violence, safely reduce the length of stay in segregation and have fewer high risk releases to the community.

Restrictive housing is a term used by correctional professionals to encompass a larger number of agency specific nomenclatures. In general terms, restrictive housing is a form of housing for inmates whose continued presence in the general population would pose a serious threat to life, property, self, staff or other inmates, or to the security or orderly operation of a correctional facility. This definition does not include protective custody. Restrictive housing is designed to support a safe and productive environment for facility staff and inmates assigned to general population as well as to create a path for those inmates in this status to successfully transition to a less restrictive setting.

The guiding principles of Restrictive Housing approved by ASCA include providing a separate review for decisions to place an offender in restrictive status housing; periodic classification reviews of offenders in restrictive housing; in-person mental health assessments by trained personnel within 72 hours of an offender being placed in restrictive housing; structured and progressive levels that include increased privileges as an incentive for positive behavior and/or program participation; determining an offender’s length of stay in restrictive housing on the nature and level of threat to the safe and orderly operation of general population as well as program participation, rule compliance and the recommendation of the person(s) assigned to conduct the classification review as opposed to strictly held time periods; providing appropriate access to medical and mental health staff and services, visits, and exercise opportunities; and providing program opportunities appropriate to support transition back to a general population setting or to the community. The ASCA guiding principles also require staff to collect sufficient data to assess the effectiveness of implementation; conduct an objective review of all offenders in restrictive status housing by persons independent of the placement authority to determine the offender’s need for continued placement in restrictive housing; and receive appropriate training in managing offenders in restrictive housing.

South Dakota certified to the U.S. Department of Justice (DOJ) that the state was not fully compliant with the new federal standards regarding the Prison Rape Elimination Act (PREA), but issued an assurance that the state is dedicated to working toward compliance. South Dakota and 45 other states and territories share the same PREA compliance status.

Under the revised PREA standards, each confinement facility must be audited at least once every three years in order to be considered compliant. Because of delays in certifying PREA auditors, South Dakota and many other states were not able to have an audit conducted by the May 15, 2014, certification deadline. Governors of states not fully in compliance with the PREA standards had to submit an assurance by May 15, 2014, that not less than five percent of its funding from DOJ for prison purposes will be utilized to work toward compliance.

The DOC realigned the East Campus at STAR Academy during FY2014, including consolidating the ExCEL and QUEST programs, because the low number of female offenders in the ExCEL program no longer justified having two separate programs. The Department of Social Services has since licensed QUEST as a 32-bed group care facility. The girls are divided into two groups of sixteen or less, allowing for offering more one-on-one counseling and work with smaller groups.

Staff members were assigned to other STAR Academy programs. No staff members lost their jobs as part of the consolidation. The reallocation of staff allows STAR Academy to meet the new Prison Rape Elimination Act supervision standards.

Additional training has been provided to assist the East Campus staff members in the area of trauma informed care. More youth are entering the corrections system with these issues.
FISCAL YEAR 2014 SIGNIFICANT EVENTS

A reentry pilot project at Mike Durfee State Prison designed to lower recidivism of offenders while on parole marked its first anniversary during FY 2014.

The Ludeman Hall Transitional Release Housing program is a volunteer project, offered to offenders who are within six months of a possible release date from MDSP, but not eligible for minimum-custody status. Participants must also be in an evidence-based program, such as Thinking for a Change or Moral Reconation Therapy, or have completed one of those programs since their last parole violation. There are 36 beds allotted for the program on the south wing of the first floor of Ludeman Hall.

Within the program, offenders can volunteer for the Prison Fellowship Pathfinders program, a six-month long program on a variety of topics such as relationships, communications, money management, and utilizing biblical based scripture to reinforce positive behavior change. Prison Fellowship attempts to align a community-based mentor with pro-social values with an offender for six months prior to parole and for six months while on parole.

The DOC added an online offender locator to the agency's website on May 1, 2014.

This allows victims and others to search the demographic information and status of current inmates, parolees and those who have completed their court-ordered sentences. The locator includes an offender's sentencing information, including their crime, county of conviction and length of sentence. An offender's booking key dates, including their initial parole date, next review date and term expires date are also accessible.

Inmate labor continues to provide savings to taxpayers.

DOC crews provided more than two million hours of work for state institutions; state, federal and local government agencies; and non-profit groups during FY 2014.

Much of the Emergency Response work included in the accompanying chart was due to inmates and DOC staff members assisting with flood mitigation efforts in Union County, top left, clean up efforts following a tornado in Wessington Springs, top right, and with blizzard clean up in several Black Hills communities in October 2013, above.
For an unprecedented fourth time, all three of the reporting programs at the State Treatment and Rehabilitation (STAR) Academy near Custer obtained Level 4 status during the April 2013 data collection period for the Performance-based Standards (PbS) project, which is a program developed by the Council of Juvenile Correctional Administrators that measures conditions and treatment services provided to incarcerated youth.

The Black Hills Correctional Transition Center in Rapid City was awarded Silver Leadership in Energy and Environmental Design (LEED) certification during FY 2014. LEED is an internationally recognized green building certification system designed by the U.S. Green Building Council to provide a framework for building owners to identify and implement practical and measurable green building design and construction solutions.

A new DOC training program to benefit supervisors debuted in FY 2014. The Leadership Boot Camp is a 8-hour training for upper level supervisory staff such as Unit Managers, Lieutenants, Captains and Majors.

A Leadership Academy has also been developed for corporals and sergeants with less than one year of supervisory experience.
