It seems the world of marketing products is not complete in this day and age without a presence on Facebook. I'm told it is about passing along information in a medium that hundreds of millions of people are using. Thanks to the help of our marketing intern Toby Davis, we have succeeded in moving our products there as well. While Toby has completed his internship and moved on to employment elsewhere, we will try to handle the world of Facebook until a new intern is hired next month. If you would like to see how it looks just click the Facebook icon below. If you have a Facebook account you can click "Like" or if you have a question, write a message and I will try to answer any question you may have. For us Baby Boomers, sending an e-mail still works just as well.

Wood Scraps Available

Though the calendar doesn't say so, the weather feels like it is time to fire up the patio fireplaces. We have plenty of wood scraps too small to use for toys. The wood can be purchased either by the pail or the barrel.
