Boot Camp Youth Help Fight Flooding in Fall River County
June 3, 1999

Thirty youth from the General Patrick Henry Brady Boot Camp near Custer are helping to control flooding in Fall River County.

The youth from the Boot Camp are preparing sandbags in an effort to slow water run off from the dam at the Cold Brook Reservoir north of Hot Springs. Boot Camp youth are used on various work projects on the Custer Youth Corrections Center Campus, as well as on projects for the city of Custer and Custer County.

The youth are working under the direction of the Fall River County Sheriff’s Department.

Three Boot Camp staff members are also on scene.

Thirty youth from the General Patrick Henry Brady Boot Camp near Custer are helping to control flooding in Fall River County.

The youth from the Boot Camp are preparing sandbags in an effort to slow water run off from the dam at the Cold Brook Reservoir north of Hot Springs. Boot Camp youth are used on various work projects on the Custer Youth Corrections Center Campus, as well as on projects for the city of Custer and Custer County.

The youth are working under the direction of the Fall River County Sheriff’s Department.

Three Boot Camp staff members are also on scene.